

Metabolism

Clinical and Experimental

Vol 59, No 10, Suppl 1, October 2010

TOWARDS A NEW THERAPEUTICS FOR PAIN: PATHOGENESIS AND CLINICAL ASPECTS

Sponsored by the Collège International de Recherche Servier
Madeleine Tremblay-Servier, PhD, President

Theodore B. VanItallie, MD, and Madhu Kalia, MD, PhD, MBA
Guest Editors

CONTENTS

Foreword Madeleine Tremblay-Servier	S1
New Therapeutics for Pain—An Overview Madhu Kalia and Theodore B. VanItallie	S2
Genetics of Pain, Opioids, and Opioid Responsiveness Johanne Tremblay and Pavel Hamet	S5
The Role of Corticosteroids and Stress in Chronic Pain Conditions Bruce S. McEwen and Madhu Kalia	S9
Pain: Sex Differences and Implications for Treatment JoAnn E. Manson	S16
Spinal Glia and Chronic Pain James P. O'Callaghan and Diane B. Miller	S21
Neurosurgical Treatments of Intractable Pain Stylianos Nicolaidis	S27
Gout: Epitome of Painful Arthritis Theodore B. VanItallie	S32
Fibromyalgia and the Complex Regional Pain Syndrome: Similarities in Pathophysiology and Treatment Richard J. Wurtman	S37
Chest Pain of Cardiac and Noncardiac Origin Claude Lenfant	S41
Opioids for Cancer Pain: The Challenge of Optimizing Treatment Gérard E. Plante and Theodore B. VanItallie	S47